

Gergő Iváncsics has been involved in setting up and founding Hungary's first social impact fund (Impact Ventures) since 2015, and is passionately growing the fund's portfolio of European early stage social ventures since its launch in 2018.

From deal sourcing to portfolio management, he's responsible for the investment process and impact management. Gergő builds on his experience as investment analyst at PBG FMC venture capital fund and M&A analyst at Viennese i5invest. His passion is for technology enabled social innovation, and is restlessly searching for the next tech break-through that benefits the life of those in need.

Gergő studied Business Development MA at Corvinus University of Budapest and is a CEMS Master in International Management graduate, having studied in Copenhagen Business School. He is also faithful to his helping-vocation, having also graduated in psychology at the University of Szeged.
